National President's Message

The Power of Not Grumbling or Disputing: Embracing Philippians 2:14-18

In the fast-paced and often chaotic world we live in, it's easy to find ourselves grumbling and disputing about various aspects of our lives in our family, work and/or ministry. Complaining is probably one of the sins most tolerated by Christians as we think we're all so prone to do it. From minor inconveniences to major challenges, it's natural to express frustration or engage in disagreements. This is what the Israelites did by committing the sin of murmuring to Moses and their circumstances in the wilderness. But God said that their murmuring was against Him (Exodus 16:8).

However, after reading Philippians 2:14-18, I have learnt a profound lesson of how I can navigate this negative attitude of mine to a more positive attitude with grace and in Paul's Apostolic command, we are to mark it with joy, even amid difficult trials. What an antidote to the sin of grumbling, and disputing. The wisdom found in Philippians 2:14 encourages FGB happiest men on earth to "do all things without grumbling (murmuring) or disputing." At first glance, this may seem like what Paul preached a good sermon after telling the Christians to work out their salvation with fear and trembling. However, upon closer examination, it reveals a powerful principle for cultivating a fulfilling and joyful life.

Grumbling, as defined in this context, refers to complaining or expressing dissatisfaction in a negative manner. It's the tendency to focus on what's wrong rather than what's right, thereby perpetuating a cycle of discontentment. Disputing, on the other hand, involves engaging in arguments or conflicts, often fueled by pride or a desire to assert one's own viewpoint. Sounds familiar?

By urging us to refrain from grumbling and disputing, the passage encourages us to shift our mindset – one that prioritizes gratitude, humility and unity. The mistake that I made in the past and now learnt in a hard way is instead of dwelling on the negative aspects of a situation or seeking validation through conflict, I need to embrace a spirit of positivity and cooperation.

Our testimony as children of God requires that we be marked, not by grumbling and disputing, but by joy, even in trials. Steven J. Cole, in his article titled Grumble, Grumble—Not! (Philippians 2: 14-18), stated that this testimony could be viewed from four perspectives:

1. Our testimony of Christ should be uppermost in our thinking – To glorify and enjoy God forever is the chief end of man. Paul says we should be blameless, innocent, and above reproach as children of God. Our late Bro. Lee Gee Koon reflected that testimony.

National President's Message (con't)

2. Our testimony is tarnished by grumbling and disputing – so when we grumble, whether about a church or FGBM leader we don't like, we're really saying, "God, you're not doing a very good job of directing my life. Why am I out here in this wilderness? Why don't we have any water? Why did you appoint this man to lead us into this mess?" We're wrongly questioning God.
3. Our testimony shines forth - when can you bear the most effective witness for Jesus Christ? When you're in the darkest place! It may be a place of personal trial, where you radiate with God's joy despite your situation. Maybe you're in a dark situation at work (or school), surrounded by crooked and perverse people, yet you still can shine! Many people will never read the Bible, but they do read you.
4. Our testimony can reflect joy - Paul could joyfully let his life be poured out as a drink offering because his focus was on "the day of Christ" when he would be rewarded because he did not run or labor in vain (2:16). though he faced much difficulty in his ministry. Every servant of Christ must die to self in obedience to Christ. He said, "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

In conclusion, by applying the above 4 principles, we will embrace the power of not grumbling and disputing. God says, "Do all things without grumbling or disputing, that you may be blameless and innocent, a child of God above reproach in the midst of this crooked and perverse generation, among whom you shine forth as a light in the world."

So, please try not to grumble about your Chapter President, Group Coordinator, Field Representative, Regional Director, Board Members, National President or Governing Council Members but offer good, constructive suggestions as a child of God! Trust God's sovereignty & wisdom and we can find comfort in the knowledge that God is working all things for our good even amid trials & tribulations (Romans 8: 28)
